SPECTRUM

The visible spectrum refers to the part of electromagnetic radiation that can be perceived by humans by the sense of sight. This spectrum extends to radiations with frequencies from $7.5 \cdot 10^{14}$ Hz, (Violet colour with a vacuum wavelength of 4000 \AA or 400 nm) to approximately a frequency of $4.3 \cdot 10^{14}$ Hz, (Red colour with a vacuum wavelength of 7000 \AA or 700 nm).

In this spectrum, one can distinguish the changes between colours, starting from the shades of purple (violet), blue, light blue, green, yellow, orange colour, as well as the shades of red.

With this theory as a source of inspiration and the color palette of the visible spectrum as a base, always maintaining the culture of sustainability and recycling, we created our new cocktail list giving a different color character to each of our cocktails.
